Question 3 (9 marks)

Droon Designs sells furniture. The business reports annually on 30 June. The furniture includes lounge suites imported from overseas.
In May 2022, Droon Designs purchased 16 leather lounge suites costing $$ 64000$ (plus GST). Delivery costs were $$ 4800$ (plus GST). The lounge suites were delivered on 30 May.
In June 2022, Droon Designs imported a large quantity of chairs, cushions, rugs and other furniture, costing $$ 90000$ (plus GST). Delivery costs were $$ 7200$ (plus GST). These items were delivered together, in a shipping container.
a. Explain how the two delivery costs should be treated.
b. After opening the shipping container, the owner finds that, instead of the 50 chairs that were ordered and paid for, 80 chairs have been delivered. The overseas supplier is unaware of the discrepancy and is unlikely to take any legal action in the future. It would be too expensive to return the additional 30 chairs.
The 50 chairs that were ordered cost $$ 40$ each (plus GST) and are expected to be sold in the next few months for $$ 100$ each (plus GST). The owner believes that the additional 30 chairs can be sold but that it will take several months to sell them.
The owner is unsure what to do. The owner's family believes that the chairs should be treated as an unexpected gain, and that no action is required.

Discuss any ethical and financial issues that the owner should consider when deciding how to deal with the additional chairs.

By August 2022, this information has not yet been provided and reports have not yet been finalised.
a. Explain one qualitative characteristic, other than relevance, that is being breached due to this delay in reporting.
b. On 10 August 2022, the accountant received the following email from the owner of Simply BBQs.

To: Virtualbooks Noel@virtualbooks.com.au
Sent: 10 August 2022
Subject: Details as requested
Hi Noel,
Sorry for the delay - we were very busy over summer - but here's the information you wanted.

Physical count:
There are a couple of problems here. The Inventory account balance at 30 June was $$ 88500$ but we could only find $$ 85000$ when we did the physical count. We know three of the Baseline BBQs were donated to the local sporting club in May to promote our business. They cost $$ 700$ each (plus GST). This needs to be accounted for because we have not recorded the donation. We are not sure where the rest of the BBQs went but they are not in the store and we need to account for this loss.

Drawings:
Unfortunately, our bookkeeper recorded all my drawings as wages in June. Sorry about that. The total was $$ 6000$ - all cash. Please correct this and I will send you Memo 35 .

PS The bookkeeper is new - we will do better this quarter!
Cheers,
Ash

|  | Kitch Equip | Industry average |
| :--- | :---: | :---: |

Question 9 (15 marks)

E-Sortz sells a wide range of computer gaming products. It reports monthly.
E-Sortz offers free delivery on orders over $200 and a delivery charge of $10 for all other orders. While these charges do not cover the delivery costs to the business, home delivery is popular with customers and attracts a lot of sales. Feedback from customers indicates that home delivery is the reason why many customers choose to buy from E-Sortz.
The business has been using a van for delivering packages but the van has high maintenance costs and needs replacing.

The Balance Sheet as at 31 May 2022 showed the following.

|  | $$$ | $$$ |
| :--- | :---: | :---: |
| Van | 45000 |  |
| Less Accumulated Depreciation of Van | $\underline{(37000)}$ | 8000 |

Depreciation of the van is $30 \%$ per annum using the reducing balance method.
On 1 July 2022, E-Sortz sold the van for $$ 5000$ (plus GST) (Rec. 365).
a. Complete the Disposal of Van account.

Before selling the van, the business had considered the best way to replace it.
The owner estimated that on average 500 packages would be delivered each month:

- 100 free deliveries
- 400 deliveries charged to customers at $$ 10$ each

The accountant has provided three options to consider:
Option 1 - Purchase two vans, each with the capacity to deliver 250 packages per month. They would cost $$ 25000$ each (plus GST). Van expenses (including depreciation) were estimated to be $$ 1800$ per van per month. Wages would double to $$ 6000$ per month to allow for a second driver.
Option 2 - Use the national postal service for all 500 deliveries each month. A 24-month lock-in contract would cost $$ 20$ (plus GST) per package.
Option 3 - Purchase one van for $$ 25000$ (plus GST), with the capacity to deliver 250 packages per month. Van expenses (including depreciation) and wages were estimated at $$ 4800$ per month. A local carrier, Deliv'r Today, would be used for the other packages, without a lock-in contract at a charge of $$ 18$ per delivery.
b. Complete the table provided to show the estimated delivery cost per month for each option.
c. Recommend the option that you think E-Sortz should select. Justify your recommendation.
