Question 5
Use the contemporary analytical framework to interpret the artwork illustrated opposite in terms of its
• presentation
• content/subject matter.
Your interpretation must include reference to the artwork illustrated and to the commentary that describes it.
Jim Lambie, _Eight Miles High_ installation, mixed media including: coloured vinyl tape, wall-mounted double-bed mattress and black enamel paint, concrete blocks and ceramic cockatoo, 2009

Commentary

In this work, contemporary British artist Jim Lambie attempts to break down the separation that exists between viewers and artworks in traditional gallery environments. Lambie has taken a gallery interior and converted it into a vibrant installation piece where everything inside the gallery – including the viewer – becomes part of a combined artwork. The title _Eight Miles High_ refers to 1960s popular music and performance that often used colour and sound to alter the viewer’s or listener’s consciousness and change conventional ways of seeing the world.
Question 6
Refer to pages 2 and 3 of the insert. Discuss the different ways the artists, Cristofano Allori and Cindy Sherman, have responded to the depiction of women in art. Your interpretation must include reference to the cultural analytical framework.
Question 7
Refer to page 4 of the insert. In your response refer to the artwork illustrated as well as to both the commentaries below.
Imagine that you are part of a panel deciding whether or not to purchase this artwork for permanent exhibition at the location indicated in the explanation below the images.
Do you think Another Place should be purchased and exhibited permanently at this location?
Give reasons for your point of view.

Commentary 1
The council should not buy this work. This is a beach – not an art gallery. People go to the beach to swim, surf, fish and relax – not to see art. The sculptures spoil the view and pose a danger to visitors. Some people might also take offence at the sight of all these statues of naked men – particularly elderly people and children, who should not be made to feel intimidated when visiting a beach. Perhaps most importantly, though, Another Place represents a man-made intrusion on a beautiful natural landscape and it poses a serious threat to the wildlife – such as the birds that will, no doubt, be scared off by all these ugly, rusting, naked men.

Commentary 2
The council should certainly buy this work. It is a beautiful installation that takes art out of the gallery and into everyday life. The siting adds to its meaning because it reinforces its message about humanity’s relationship to nature. Another theme is the idea of immigration and departure. The sight of the silent figures staring out to sea and being washed over by the tides is beautiful and asks us to consider the long journey that we all make throughout our lives. The environmental issues can be easily addressed and it is only a section of the beach that is affected – with kilometres free on either side. Finally, the artist is very famous and having the work here permanently will bring money into the area by encouraging people to come and see it for themselves.

TURN OVER
Cristofano Allori, Judith with the Head of Holofernes, oil on canvas, ca. 1616–18

In the ancient story of Judith and Holofernes, Judith is a brave female hero who saves her people from an overwhelming army led by the evil general, Holofernes. This Italian Baroque painting turns the story around by presenting Judith as a heartless beauty who will destroy any man who comes under her spell. Allori adds a personal dimension by representing his real-life lover as Judith and by painting himself as the head of Holofernes that has been cut from his body with the sword in Judith’s right hand. The elderly female servant, who helps Judith kill Holofernes, reinforces the message that women are dangerous and not to be trusted.
Cindy Sherman, Untitled # 228 (Judith with the Head of Holofernes), type C colour photograph, 1990

This contemporary photograph is based on Allori’s painting but it has been altered in ways that change its original meaning. The photo employs a deliberately cheap looking photographic style that brings out the sinister qualities of Allori’s original. The photo pokes fun at the tradition of depicting women in art as beautiful destroyers of men. It suggests that to see women this way is a ridiculous idea that should not be confused with reality. Sherman has photographed herself as Judith but at the same time hides her identity under heavy make-up to suggest the need for women to fight against attitudes of this kind.
