2013 Languages: Chinese Second Language Advanced GA 3: Examination

Written component

GENERAL COMMENTS
Many students performed very strongly in the 2013 Chinese Second Language Advanced examination. Most students demonstrated good skills in all language areas – listening, reading and translating, as well as essay writing – and achieved good results. A small number of students struggled in all sections.

In Section 1 – Listening and responding, most students handled the questions readily and competently. Students performed much better in Part B (answer in Chinese) than in Part A (answer in English). However, in both sections, many students gave incomplete responses that very often were missing detailed information.

In Section 2 – Reading, responding and translating, students managed the reading component very well, with many students gaining high marks for Questions 5 and 6. However, it is important that students read the questions carefully, making sure that the information they provide is relevant to the questions. Most students managed the translation tasks well. Students should note that knowing how to use dictionaries effectively will not only assist them to improve the quality of their translation, but will also help them to manage their time well. Students should also be aware of the importance of keeping a balance between a commitment to faithfulness to the source and the natural flow of the target language. For example, to achieve fluency, the words might not be in the same order in the translation as they are in the original texts.

In Section 3 – Writing in Chinese, most students showed an excellent understanding of the requirements of their chosen question. Many students were able to produce well-planned and well-structured essays covering a range of highly relevant information, using the correct features of their chosen text type, and varied and sophisticated sentence structures and vocabulary. However, some students failed to provide all the information needed to address the question fully, while a small number of students showed insufficient language skills to express their ideas accurately and clearly.

SPECIFIC INFORMATION
This report provides sample answers or an indication of what answers may have included. Unless otherwise stated, these are not intended to be exemplary or complete responses.

Section 1 – Listening and responding
Part A – Answer in English
Most students handled this section well; however, many students failed to score full marks because their responses had insufficient details. For example, in Question 1, incomplete answers would include ‘purchase houses’ instead of ‘purchase big houses’, ‘purchase cars’ instead of ‘purchase good cars’, ‘holidaying’ instead of ‘holiday in China and overseas’ and ‘participate in sports activities’ instead of ‘participate in expensive sports activities’.

Text 1
Question 1
Increased wealth has enabled modern Chinese people to
- purchase big/large houses
- purchase expensive/good cars (not sports cars)
- holiday in China and overseas
- participate in expensive sports activities.

Text 2
Question 2
- Wang Ming likes to watch celebrity interviews and Chinese cartoons because they help him learn more Chinese characters and enrich his knowledge.
- He dislikes television series/dramas and children’s programs because they are long and boring, and he does not have much time/needs to get on with his homework.

Students needed to provide the names of programs and reasons for watching/not watching these programs.
Part B – Answer in Chinese
In this part, students were required to understand the information as well as respond to the questions in Chinese characters. Students need to pay attention to detail when writing characters in order to avoid careless mistakes. The entire response was assessed for accuracy of language. When answering in Chinese, students are reminded to write in full sentences.

Text 3
Question 3
张明喜欢他的新房子，因为他的新房子比以前大了很多，有11间房间，4间洗手间，后院（not：后面）还有一个大篮球场。新房子的风水很好，因为前面有小河，后面有山。

Section 2 – Reading, responding and translating
Part A – Answer in English
Students were required to read two texts and use the information in the texts to complete three tables. Most students completed this task successfully; however, many students mixed up the content of the two texts and completed the tables with the wrong information. It may be useful to prepare similar activities during the year to raise students’ awareness of the importance of reading questions carefully, and to practice under examination conditions.

In this section, students must ensure their spelling and grammar are correct.

Question 6
China is one of the four ancient civilisations of the world. China has a written history of more than 5000 years. The long history of China can be divided into three phases: the ancient time, modern time and contemporary time. The ancient and modern periods cover 3000 BC (and earlier) to 1911, and the contemporary period is from 1911 to the present. In Chinese history, the four inventions, which are marvellous, have had a big impact on people’s lives. However, China has also learnt a lot of advanced knowledge from Western countries in contemporary times.
Question 7
Taiwan is to the east of China and is about 700 kilometres from Shanghai. Not only are there high mountains and beautiful seas, but there are also rainforests. Taiwan is a very large island where there is plenty of delicious food and many fun places. If you have the opportunity to go to Taiwan, you must visit the night markets to taste many different snacks.

Question 8
Everyone has friends. Some people have many friends, while some have only a few. But everyone would have one or two close friends. What is a close friend? It is someone who will help you out when you are in trouble and who will share happiness with you.

Section 3 – Writing in Chinese
Although all questions were selected, Question 11 was the most popular, followed by Questions 12, 10 and 9. Many students demonstrated an excellent understanding of their chosen question. They included relevant information and used the appropriate structures. Nevertheless, it was common for students to miss one or two key elements that were required to achieve full marks. For example, in Question 9, students were required to write a diary entry that reflected a Year 12 exchange student’s life, travel and study experiences in China. Many students failed to include information about the student’s homestay experience, even though this was clearly stated in the task. Students were also penalised for not developing their written piece using the specific type or kind of writing designed for the question.
