2018 VCE Indonesian First Language written examination report

General comments

Student responses varied in both sections of the 2018 VCE Indonesian First Language written examination. Section 1 was challenging for students. Students answered questions well in Sections 2 and 3. However, students are reminded that they must analyse the information from the reading texts to formulate their answers.

Specific information

This report provides sample answers or an indication of what answers may have included. Unless otherwise stated, these are not intended to be exemplary or complete responses.

Students were expected to answer all questions by using good sentence structures, and full marks were not awarded for the criterion of grammar, vocabulary and sentence structure if they did not do so.

Section 1 – Listening and responding

In this section students were expected to understand and answer the specific aspects of the texts and convey information accurately and appropriately. Many students’ responses were short, lacked good structures and did not include the required information.
