GENERAL COMMENTS
Responses to the 2010 Persian examination were very impressive and students attempted all questions.

Students are reminded that they should read questions carefully and highlight key words before responding. No credit was given for using information not included in the text. Errors in spelling and grammar were a problem. Teachers are advised to refer to the VCE Persian Study Design when preparing students for the written examination.

Part B – Answer in Persian

Text 9

Question 9

In Part B, students were required to write a formal letter of 150–200 words in Persian. They were required to use information given in an advertisement to write to a tour company. Responses in this section were assessed on the following criteria. (These assessment criteria are printed on the back page of examination booklets.)

- the capacity to understand general and specific aspects of the text
- the capacity to convey information accurately and appropriately

Section 3 – Writing in Persian

In Section 3, students needed to choose one of four questions and write their answers in Persian in 200–250 words. Most students chose Question 12 and produced an imaginative piece of writing. Some students who chose Question 10 limited themselves by simply writing the plot of a film and failed to evaluate all aspects of the film. Some students were very creative and produced excellent pieces of writing.

All topics were assessed using the three criteria printed on the back page of the examination paper:

- relevance, breadth and depth of content
- appropriateness of structure and sequence
- accuracy, range and appropriateness of vocabulary and grammar.

Question 10

Students were required to write an article for a Persian newspaper evaluating an interesting movie that they had seen recently.

Question 11

Students were required to write the text of a speech for Persian VCE students to persuade them to consider the benefits of taking a year away from their studies after finishing high school to visit their parents’ country of birth before continuing with their tertiary studies.

Question 12

Students needed to write an imaginative story for a short story competition to be held in their school, beginning with ‘I got up in the morning and went to wash my face. I was very much surprised when I could not see my face in the mirror. I realised that I had become invisible . . .’

Question 13

Students were required to write an informative report for a Persian newspaper on the impact of the expansion of industry and new employment opportunities for young people in Persian-speaking countries.
