Question 2
Identify and assess two key issues which have had a significant impact on a community you have studied this year. Refer to government policy or public opinion in your response.
‘Un-Australian’
Who’s saying it and why

“I think it’s just insipid, it’s wrong, it’s un-Australian.”
Football identity Dermott Brereton after he was injured standing up to a group of six men who taunted his date.

“I think associating with a terrorist organisation demonstrates you are un-Australian.”
Federal Tasmanian Liberal MP Michael Ferguson

“I find it absolutely staggering how un-Australian everybody has been to Michelle to kick her when she was down.”
The father of model Michelle Leslie expresses his feelings at the way PM John Howard told his daughter not to comment about the Bali 9.

“Out of touch, out of control, arrogant...and un-Australian.”
Opposition Leader Kim Beazley on the Howard Government’s industrial relations laws.

“The idea of control orders, preventative detention and the increase in ASIO power is simply un-Australian.”
Law Council of Australia national president John North.

“I’ll always have a bet on Melbourne Cup day. It’s un-Australian not to bet.”
Seven commentator Bruce McAvaney

“It just seemed so un-Australian.”
Former England test cricket skipper Nasser Hussain on Australia preferring to take the light rather than face Andrew Flintoff.

1 mocked

END OF SECTION B
There is a framed certificate in Jason McCheyne and Adrian Tuozon's Brunswick house, which holds both a personal and political significance. It is the official declaration of their marriage, on January 5, 2004 at the Toronto town hall, Canada.

“We’ve got this beautiful wedding certificate, that if we had a boy and a girl’s name on it would be accepted,” Mr McCheyne said.

The couple’s marriage flies in the face of Australian government policy, although an increasing number of Commonwealth and European countries have legalised same-sex marriage or civil unions including, most recently, Britain.

And despite their legal Canadian marriage, both men, who have been in a relationship for eight years, said they would exchange vows again if the right was afforded in Australia.

“It’s very important,” Mr McCheyne said. “We watch all our Commonwealth neighbours – Britain now has civil unions, New Zealand has civil unions, Canada has full marriage, South Africa’s about to follow with full marriage – and we are going backwards.”

Question 4

a. List four basic citizenship rights available in Australia.

b. Referring to the photograph and written text, identify the citizenship issue for the couple in this representation.
Australian citizens who marry a person of the opposite gender overseas have their marriages acknowledged when they return to Australia.

Australian citizens who marry a person of the same gender overseas do not have their marriages acknowledged when they return to Australia.

c. Discuss the citizenship rights involved in this issue.

In your answer make references to basic citizenship rights and to material you have studied this year.
